Is it worth switching tenancy deposit schemes? This West Sussex estate agent thinks so. This is their experience...

As successful West Sussex property consultants, the team at Tod Anstee Property Consultants has always set the bar high. To deliver a quality service like they consistently do, the agency needs absolute confidence in the services they provide to their landlord clients and tenants via industry partners and suppliers.

Tod Anstee had been using the DPS scheme but for various reasons decided to leave and move all their tenancy deposits to the free TDS Custodial scheme.

“We found the switch from DPS to TDS Custodial to be swift, trouble free and painless. The TDS team collated all the information with minimal impact on my lettings staff and affected the change incredibly smoothly,” commented Ian Colban, Lettings Director at Tod Anstee Property Consultants.

“The time saved in processing both new deposit registrations, and in facilitating deposit releases has been invaluable.”

Of the three government-approved tenancy deposit schemes, we asked how TDS Custodial compared to the others:

“I have had direct experience of all the tenancy deposit schemes in various roles over the last few years and can say that TDS Custodial is head and shoulders above the competition. I can't see any reason why any agent would go elsewhere for deposit management.”

TDS Custodial comes with a host of features that not only make life easier for letting agents – but gives you much greater control too. The innovative tenancy management dashboard means you don't have to contact TDS every time you need to make a change to tenant details. Instead, you login and make the change in minutes.

In fact, the entire process with TDS Custodial has been designed to save agents time and hassle. That includes the switching process too. It takes to initiate the switch, and we make the entire process smooth and straightforward. Why not arrange a demonstration to see how simple it is for yourself?
